

E-Coiled tubing logging

Well logging with downhole logging tool conveyed with E-coiled tubing with surface-powered downhole logging tool and real-time data communication between surface panel and downhole logging tool

The important feature of e-coil logging is that after RIH, field engineer can see all logging data in real-time and dispatch commands which tool can understand

This type of conveyance is used in horizontal and highly deviated wells